Opium Act or the Rules thereunder. To make a successful raid, the following categories of persons are generally responsible and may be granted suitable amounts of rewards:-

(i) Informers.—Informers should be paid secretly by the Collector or the District Excise Officer personally as soon after a successful, raid as possible without waiting for the result of the trial or appeal, or after the result of the trial or appeal provided the Collector is satisfied that the case was genuine and its detection took place on the information supplied by them. A statement of the informer shall, however, be recorded by the officer receiving information before the raid is conducted and it shall be kept in the custody of the Excise and Taxation Officer who shall verify it at the time of the disbursement of the reward to him.

(ii) Government Officers or Officials, other than those of the Excise Department.—Government Official, who render active assistance to the Excise Staff in the detection and conviction of a case under the Act, may be granted rewards after ascertaining from the Head of the department of which the officials, recommended for the grant of reward, belong, if he has any objection to the payment of such reward.

The Collectors and the Assistant Excise and Taxation Commissioner in respect of the Excise staff posted at the Solan Breweries and Kasauli Distillery, may also grant commendation certificates in form M-35 for assistance rendered to the Excise Department. The value of these certificates depends on their being given with discrimination for special services and Collectors must feel their responsibility for not allowing them to be cheapened by indiscriminate issue.

(iii) Excise Officers/Officials.—It is the ordinary duty of all the excise officials to prevent and detect offences against the Excise and Opium Acts. Devotion to duty, energy and skill are expected from officials of the Department. In the matter of rewards therefore, a clear distinction must be drawn between excise officials who are, and others who are not, under an obligation to give active assistance to the Excise Department. At the same time it is recognised that exceptional service outside the ordinary course of duty or exhibiting qualities of a specially meritorious kind does entitle excise officials to special recognition. This recognition ordinarily takes the form of a special entry in a character-roll, a commendation certificate or special promotion. Cash rewards may, however, be granted for conduct displaying extraordinary address, acuteness, industry, fidelity or courage. In all recommendations for any form of recognition or reward the grounds of the recommendation should be set forth in sufficient detail to show that the services to be recognised were extraordinary.

It is only from the judgement of the trial Court that the Collector can come to know of the correct facts and determine whether any exceptional work has been done by any one outside the ordinary course of duty which may deserve recognition in the form of a cash reward. Before recommending a cash reward to an excise official, the Collector should invariably obtain the recommendations of the trying magistrate, who will set forth the grounds of his recommendation in sufficient detail to show that the services to be recognised were extraordinary.

The Excise and Taxation Commissioner shall grant commendation certificate in form M-65 to excise officials and others who have rendered services of a definitely outstanding nature. Reports relating to the grant of special commendation certificates in form M-65 should be made once a year and should reach the Excise and Taxation Commissioner's office through the Collector of the District by the 15th April at the latest. A specimen of form M-65 is given below:—

Commendation Certificate is granted to Shri.....
..... of District, in appreciation of the good work performed by him during the year..... in the..... District in the detection of

The Excise and Taxation Commissioner may grant rewards up to Rs. 1,000. If rewards exceeding one thousand rupees, in any one case are proposed, the sanction of the Lieutenant Governor, Himachal Pradesh, must be obtained through the Excise and Taxation Commissioner.

(ii) If a reward is proposed for any official of a status higher than a Naib-Tehsildar or a Sub-Inspector of Police or Excise the previous sanction of the Excise and Taxation Commissioner must be obtained and no reward for a Government servant exceeding, in any one case, one thousand rupees shall be granted, except after consultation with the Finance Department.
